

The Religious Society of Friends in Ireland

Ireland Yearly Meeting 2015

Public lecture

By Alastair McIntosh

(independent scholar, activist, writer, speaker and broadcaster)

To become 'the People of the Cross' - Climate Change, Violence and some Meanings of Creation in Our Times

Friday 10th April 2015, 7.30pm

Dromantine Conference and Retreat Centre, Newry, Co Down

There are many forms of underlying violence in our culture with which we are to some degree complicit. Has this caused us to lose sight of the deeper meanings of the Cross in the Christian tradition? Science tells us of the physical and biological side of the Creation – but what of the Creation's deeper revelation? What can present-day suffering teach us about the Creation's purpose and our lives' meaning? Does Christian mysticism, including the Quaker tradition, hold the keys to a deeper vision of reality? Is Christianity still a very young religion, and could the Cross become a supreme symbol of non-violence that helps redeem the world? If so, can this help inspire us to tackle the challenges of climate change and wars that never seem to end?

Everyone welcome